CHRISTMAS NOVELTIES
AT
R. D. AND J. B. FRASER'S.

(Reprinted from the "SUFFOLK CHRONICLE," December 8th, 1894.)

"Searchers after the beautiful (and, surely, with the season of 'Goodwill towards men' so closely upon us their name is legion), in the shape of pretty gifts wherewith to express one's kind thoughts, should not fail to pay a visit to Messrs. Fraser's pretty 'Liberty' rooms on the first floor. 'Our true intent is all for your delight' must assuredly be this firm's motto, for they have filled these rooms with the choicest works of art, and, not only do they choose lavishly and well, but they place the goods offered for sale in such exquisite setting that every article seems to possess a decided cachet of its own, which places it quite beyond the pale of everyday trifles. A fairyland of wealth is revealed as one reaches the top of the easy staircase. We seem to leave the bustling, occupied, money-making world behind, and enter a domain where beauty reigns supreme—beauty which appeals to the senses in the artistically subdued light, lovely colours, exquisite forms that surround, and the perfume-laden air one breathes. Certainly no one who claims to possess good taste can fail to find something to suit. Is the present for a lady proud of her home? What 'ha'strau,' worthy of the name, would not be delighted with a Cairo folding stand and tray, or with one of those quaintly inlaid coffee stools (from far Damascus) on which to stand a pot and palm? If already the possessor of these, then a gorgeously embroidered screen from victorious Japan. Or last, though by no means least, one can fall back on the familiar tea cosy, but so daintily ruched, frilled, puffed, and perfumed, as to be familiar no longer. Is it for a sister, or, perchance, for someone else's sister? Then the dainty little draped cotton basket, the [illegible] wrought handkerchief sachet, the sweet-[illegible] sandal wood glove box, the beautifully enamelled box, box, or the useful and decorative bottles of scent ca[illegible] called into requisition. Is it for the aged mother or frie[illegible]? What more appreciated than the soft down cushion on wh[illegible] to rest the poor tired head? Here they are galore—also frilled, puffed, and perfumed—in every lovely fabric under the sun. Even 'poor man' is not forgotten, for here is something out of the common—an artistic waste-paper basket, not beribboned, but a substantial and useful structure lined inside and out with real gold leaf, which in combinat[illegible] with the cane-work gives a handsome effect. Nor must green 'Clutha' glass flower vases, indispensable to the furnished dinner table, or the quaintly shaped 'Dunn' pottery, be forgotten. A word of praise is due to M[illegible] Fraser's collection of carved oak, to be seen in many p[illegible]ty shapes. Let the visitor not forget to peep into the next room, which is filled with novel pieces of green stained oak that make one quite envious and set one longing to turn out one's 'friends of the past' and make room for the new, charming, and deserving stranger. We scarcely like to connect such beautiful things as these with the vulgar question of pounds, shillings, or pence, but even the most impecunious amongst us need not hesitate to become a buyer, for the most dainty of trifles can be acquired for the absurd sum of a shilling or so, and the quaintest chair or coffee stool for about half a guinea."

AN INSPECTION INVITED.

EADE'S GOUT AND RHEUMATIC PILLS.
I WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM IF THEY COST ONE POUND A BOTTLE.
"16, Burton Crescent, Dewsbury Road, Leeds. May 2nd, 1894.
"Dear Sir,—It is with unbounded pleasure I send you a few lines in praise of your most excellent Pills. It is six years since I first had Rheumatic Gout, and I had three months in bed with it. Of course I had the doctor, and he sweated me down almost to a skeleton. The next spring I had another attack, and was persuaded by a friend to try your Pills. I did so, and am quite sure they prevented my being laid up again. Ever since when I have had the least pain I have taken two or three Pills, and have been all right again directly.
I WOULD NOT BE WITHOUT THEM IF THEY COST ONE POUND A BOTTLE.
You are quite at liberty to make what use you like of this, and I shall be pleased to answer any poor sufferer who cares to write me (enclosing stamped address). Wishing you every success.

IN DEFENCE OF THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

TRENCHANT SPEECHES BY SIR C. DALRYMPLE AND MR. F. PACKARD

THE GOVERNMENT'S LUDICROUS POSITION.

Concluding his visit to Ipswich last week, Sir Charles Dalrymple, M.P., spoke at a well-attended concert at St. John's School-room on Friday evening. Mr. Edward Packard, jun., presided, and in introducing Sir Charles Dalrymple he alluded in sympathetic terms to the protracted illness through which Lord Echo had passed, and announced amid applause that Lord Echo had written, saying that one of his first duties on his return to England would be to come among his Ipswich friends. Proceeding to speak of the political situation generally, Mr. Packard referred to the masterly reception which Mr. Arthur Balfour received in Newcastle a few weeks ago, and mentioned the singular fact that there was no more popular name throughout Ireland to-day than that of the leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons, who was not only the great leader of the Conservative party in the Commons, but also the first statesman who had in reality conferred great benefit upon the Irish people. Mr. Balfour's legislation had provoked a great amount of industry in Ireland, and done more for the welfare of her people than all the long and laboured efforts of Mr. Gladstone and his party. (Cheers.) One of the great things the Radical party were going to advocate at all over the country. (Cheers.) The House of Lords had been attacked chiefly on the score of its having prevented certain measures being passed into law; but, with regard to the Home Rule and the Employers' Liability Bill, he thought they had much cause for thankfulness that they had a House of Lords. (Renewed cheers.) The working men of this country might have had an Employers' Liability Act had not Mr. Gladstone, in a fit of ill-temper, rejected the Lords' amendment. He (Mr. Packard) predicted that when a Liberal Government under Lord Salisbury came into office, an Employers' Liability measure would be passed which would prove a real benefit to the working classes. Having pointed to the trivial pretexts on which the Radicals based complaints against the House of Commons, the gentleman concluded by expressing the hope that the Unionists of St. John's would show their determination to maintain the Constitution under which they had so far so well fared so well for so long a period. (Applause.)

Sir Charles Dalrymple, M.P., who met with a most cordial reception, took up the thread of Mr. Packard's remarks and observed that the state of politics at the present time was very strange, and stranger still, he thought, was the position of the Government. The position of the Government would be ludicrous altogether were it not for the important stake involved in what the Government did. Some aspects of its position were truly ludicrous. They were at the mercy of this or that section of their following, and some of those sections were very imperious and difficult to deal with. Who would have thought some few years ago that the great Radical party—(laughter)—it was not great as it used to be—(laughter)—would have been at the mercy of the Irish vote in the House of Commons? And yet there was no man living in Parliament to-day who opposed the Irish vote more strenuously than the present Radical leader in the House of Commons (Sir William Harcourt). The Radical Government also showed great levity in the way in which they tried to play off one section of their supporters against another. It was a question of

and that dictated what subject they would deal with first. What was a church or the condition of property to them when only the interests of the Government were considered? But the Government had had recently to endure a very strange experience. Mr. Gladstone in his spare time had taken to writing letters, and he had lately written two letters—one on the subject of the Local Veto Bill and the other on the subject of Education—and in both of these bad mad language which was totally at variance with the language he had held when in office and the acknowledged leader of the Liberal party. He (Sir Charles) believed that as time went on they would see some further exhibitions of the same kind. It would not be at all surprising if Mr. Gladstone were to write a letter to the Cabinet asking them views which he formerly did on the question of Employers' Liability, but that he could not disguise from himself the desirability of allowing employers and employed to make terms with one another wherever it was possible. Nor would it be surprising if he were to write a letter some day, stating that a good deal might be said for Disestablishment, but that still, on looking at the whole subject, he could not see how it would be right to arrest the progress of good work being done by the Church by disturbing its connection with the State. (Laughter.) In regard to the present attitude of the Radical party, two salient points were to be noticed—one was the desire of the Government if they dared, and of their general supporters as well, to shelve the question of Home Rule; the other was the desire to pick a quarrel with the House of Lords. Radical speakers were now particularly careful about keeping Home Rule in the background. If they did refer to it they used some

MELLIFLUOUS EUPHEMISM

to disguise the real nature of Mr. Gladstone's project, although Earl Spencer had made the awful threat that he would leave the Government if Home Rule was dropped. Mr. Bryce, of Ipswich, also said that the Radical party were just as great Home Rulers as ever they were. But the whole of their speeches considered only went to show the hollowness and insincerity of the party respecting that question. In regard to the revolutionary agitation against the Constitution, Sir Charles Dalrymple said two statements were commonly made now-a-days by Radical speakers, which were absolutely contradictory. One was a statement as to the triumphant course of legislation which the Radical party had carried through in the last so many years—on great occasions they called it fifty years—(laughter)—and the next was that no useful legislation could be passed because of the House of Lords. The two things were utterly irreconcilable, for of the measures of the past must have gone through the House of Lords, or they would not have become law. Lord Rosebery had talked about bringing forward something in the nature of a revolution, but what he meant after all was apparently expressed in the similarly-sounding word of resolution, which would carry the scheme they professed to have in view "to forwards." (Laughter.) However that might be, the truth was that the House of Lords had never defied the definite and unmistakable will of the people of the country. All they had done recently was to in respect of which the country had not expressed a clear and unmistakable opinion. (Hear, hear.) In 1868, when the general election turned practically upon the question of disestablishing the Irish Church, and Mr. Gladstone went into power with a large majority, the House of Lords accepted that decision, and Lord Salisbury, of whom Radicals always spoke with withering contempt, himself voted for the Bill. To say that all legislation was impossible on account of the House of Lords was therefore a signally unjust accusation, contrary to the facts. Behind all these arguments there remained the material question whether there should or should not be a Second Chamber. Mr. Labouchere and some who thought with him wanted one Chamber only; but Lord Rosebery was a Second Chamber man. Mr. Bryce (who recently spoke at Ipswich) had argued very strongly on the same side, and in the Home Rule Bill Mr. Gladstone proposed to create or invent a Second Chamber in Ireland. Accepting this as the more authoritative opinion of the Liberal party, Sir Charles contended that any reform or reconstruction of the House of Lords would strengthen that body rather than weaken it, and that this would not at all suit the book" of the Radical party. (Laughter and applause.) In conclusion Sir Charles said that he and his colleague meant to stand again for Ipswich whenever the election came, and that he hoped and believed they would again be returned. (Cheers.)—A vote of thanks was then passed, on the motion of Mr. C. Smith, seconded by Mr. Abbott Lord. Although many of the performers were unable to be present owing to the extremely unpropitious character of the weather, the concert was very enjoyable. Instrumental selections by Mr. E. Packard's family and a song by Miss C. Packard were greatly appreciated; Mr. W. Dowbarel was heartily applauded for his rendering of "The King's Own," while the humorous element was well sustained by Messrs. T. Pettitt, Will May, and G. H. Smith.

REJECT A CERTAIN MEASURE

FOOTBALL NOTES.
[By HALF-BACK.]

The Ipswich Town Club have at great financial sacrifice induced the Peterboro' Club to forego their right of playing the final tie in the qualifying competition for the English Amateur Cup at Peterboro'. The match will therefore be decided this afternoon upon the Portman Road enclosure, the kick off, according to agreement, being punctually at two o'clock. There are, I believe I might almost say, several thousands who are interested in the welfare of the Ipswich Club, especially in the matter of English Cup matches. It behoves these people therefore to turn up in full force, not only to support their representatives with their cheers, but also with their shillings and sixpences in order to insure the club against pecuniary loss. If they do not, I think it safe to promise, will be amply rewarded by a capital game, for the Peterboro' men are a good stiff 1st to deal with, and the "Stripes" will have nothing to throw away in the match.

The teams will be as under:—Ipswich Town: P. P. Cornell, goal; A. Bailey and H. H. Walford, backs; A. J. Hayward, F. W. Turner, and C. F. Woods, halves; R. Bowden, W. J. Cowell, A. Keal, right; H. T. Ratcliff, centre; A. A. Towse and W. Fenton, left. Linesman, S. A. Notcutt. Peterborough: W. Hare, goal; H. Brasher and G. Moore, backs; W. J. Core, A. Carney, and H. W. Hill, halves; A. Allen and H. Rintoul, right; C. S. T. Badger, centre; G. Forman and R. Butler, left. Linesman, W. J. Core. Referee, Mr. J. W. Shaker (Framlingham College).

Buy Alexandra met with their first reverse in the West Suffolk League match against Long Melford upon the ground of the latter club. The result was for a long time in doubt, but at the finish Melford were the better game all through. It was not till close upon time that Beale put on the deciding goal, which gave his side a narrow victory by two goals to one. The Haverhill Rovers were engaged at Sudbury against the home team, but the latter being left drawn with the score at one all. Sudbury are showing signs of a decided improvement. Glemsford at length altered the singularly unique character of their record by beating Lavenham at home by five goals to nil. Their record, which previously read—played 7, won 1, lost 6, goals scored 3, goals against 28, being now improved.

The West Suffolk League table revised to date stands as under:—

	Pld.	Won.	Drn.	Lst.	For.	Agst.	Pts.
Bury Alexandra	5	5	0	0	13	2	10
Haverhill Rovers	5	4	0	1	13	3	10
Long Melford	5	3	0	2	25	11	10
Hawkedon Town	5	2	0	3	7	10	4
Glemsford	8	2	0	6	6	28	4
Sudbury	5	0	0	3	2	7	3
Lavenham	5	0	0	4	3	11	0
Bury Town	4	0	0	1	3	2	17—1

Three matches were also played in the North Suffolk League. Beccles College received a second reverse upon their own ground, going under to Kirkley to the tune of three goals to one. This would certainly appear from this fact that the Collegians, like the proverbial Scotchman, are never so much at home as when they are abroad. The result of this game means a good deal for both clubs, but Kirkley have now secured such a lead that it would be a somewhat difficult matter for another club to overhaul them. Stonehamian are coming on with a vengeance. Following their romp away from Halesworth the week previous, they on Saturday walked round the Lowestoft Town team in the tune of four to one, and non the latter's ground to boot. Their home match with the same team is down for next week, or two too early, for had the same to be played over again I am inclined to think the result would have been different.

The result of the remaining game was a great surprise and embodied a remarkable reversal of form. Halesworth were at home to Beccles Carton, and managed to score a couple of points by two goals to one. After that performance I should be the last man in the previous week, it was not generally supposed that Halesworth could stave off defeat at the hands of the redoubtable Beccles team, but such, however, has happened. The Cartonians must really be careful or their chances of securing the championship will be seriously damaged. The North Suffolk League table now stands as under:—

	Pld.	Won.	Drn.	Lst.	For.	Agst.	Pts.
Kirkley	4	4	0	0	16	7	8
Carton	4	3	0	1	8	3	6
Beccles Carton	4	3	0	1	7	3	6
Beccles College	5	3	0	2	8	9	6
Stonehamian	4	2	0	2	12	8	4
Halesworth	4	1	0	3	4	6	2
Lowestoft Town	5	1	0	4	10	18	2
Leiston	4	0	0	4	3	11	1

Harwich and Parkeston tasted defeat for the first time this season on Saturday upon the Portman Road ground. The enclosure has not been in such magnificent form for the Essex seasiders, and the record of their performance will be announced by Saturday's game. The Town were without Woods and Walford, H.C. Murrell filling the former's place, whilst E. Heppard found a place in the team for the first time. The visitors were without Nalborough, but otherwise were well represented, a considerable following of their supporters augmenting the attendance which was a fairly large one. The high wind, which was blowing down the field from the river goal, spoiled the character of the play to a considerable extent, and the attendance was not what Town not scoring even more than the six goals by which they won.

Murrells proved a capital substitute for Woods, whilst Heppard also thoroughly justified his selection. Bailey was perfectly safe, and the two halves, Hayward and Turner, seem smarter in front of the sticks they might have record on more than one occasion. Fernie, Watts, and Middleton performed well in front, but the two former were a trifle dilatory in dealing with the attack, whilst of the home front-rank Keal was far and away the smarter, his tactics fairly puzzling the Harwich backs. Ratcliff was not at his best, whilst Cowell occasionally quite fumbled the ball clumsily. Towns, however, did excellent work, and Cotton performed creditably. Cornell, in quite a letter to the Harwich men in Ipswich, "did nothing in particular, and did it very well."

Howard and Mills at back for the visitors worked unremittingly, but spoiled their forwards' chances in the first half by invariably kicking too strongly when playing with the wind. Hall was the pick of the visitors' halves that it is more often efficacious to take the ball than the man, and also to recommend them to study the meaning of a "foul" as described in the rules of the game.

The Ipswich Middle School Past and Present were engaged at Christchurch Park with Stowmarket, whom they managed to defeat by three goals to one. It was an interesting match, and the visitors showed some excellent mettle, although they could not prevail against the fine defence of the home club, in which Mr. A. Cattermole has now resumed his position as goalkeeper.

The Framlingham Collegians made an awful example of South Yarmouth, who were paying the scholars a visit. Carrying all before them, the home lot rattled up a total of no less than 13 goals, without allowing their opponents once to reply. This is treating visitors to a warm reception with a vengeance.

The usual match between the rival schools of Ipswich and Bury was played on Saturday on the ground of the former. The visitors were represented by Thurston, Needham, and Bagshaw, which considerably weakened their ranks, although they may win for the Ipswich scholars by four goals to nil was the result.

A. R. Mumford, the smart Framlingham College half, has become a member of the Ipswich Town Club, for which, it is understood, he will play regularly after Christmas. He will be a useful man for Suffolk Cup play, holding a birth qualification.

Other local matches on Saturday ended as under, the first-named being the home club:—
Colchester Town 5, Chelmsford 2.
Dranham Athletic 4, Bury St. Edmund's Institute 1.
Bungay Cheaper Press 9, Faucenberge School 2.
Leiston 1, Stowmarket (Ipswich) 1.

Northgate School 2, Cowell's 2nd 4.

Bramford Works 0, Ipswich Town 3rd 0.

The Ipswich School Past v. Present match took place on Monday, but, although the Present scored a victory the result is not a reliable indication of relative merit, the Past being but feebly represented.

Saturday League games were productive of another win each for Everton and Sandyland. The leaders did best in beating Preston North End upon the latter's gala enclosure by two goals to one. Sanderland, on the other hand, were at home to Blackburn Rovers, and only just escaped home by three goals to two. Derby County, at home, beat Sheffield United 4—1; Liverpool won their customary victory, beating Small Heath 3—1; West Bromwich Albion, at home, accounted for Stoke to the tune of 3—2 after a tough game; the local team, however, were at home to Wolverhampton men receiving a severe beating by 6—1; Sheffield Wednesday, at Sheffield, could only draw with Bolton Wanderers 1 all; Notts County, at Nottingham Forest, were no mid-week matches, the table now reading:—

	Pld.	Won.	Lst.	Drn.	For.	Agst.	Pts.

The second division games on Saturday were only four in number, and resulted as follows, the first-named being the home club:—Notts County 1, Newton Heath 1; Darwen 2, Burnley 1; Bootle 1, Grimsby City 4. Woolwich Arsenal 1; Newcastle United 5, Rotherham 2. The table revised to date is given below:—

DESECRATION OF NATURE.

Although the Homœon Co. have had one of the greatest Kyes, for years, in existence put before them, they have declined to entertain it on account of the widespread disgust existing in this Isle of all who love their every vales, fields, streams, rocks and hills in the glory of their natural beauties, unedified by this modern bill-sticking age. The Homœon Co. are content with the legitimate channel of the Press, and by Pamphlets containing Testimonials. They can point to cures, far more convincing than mere assertion.

TESTIMONIAL FROM BISHOP TAYLOR.

I have used HOMOCEA, and have proved its healing virtue both for severe bruises and fresh wounds, and also to kill the virus of mosquitoes and chiggoes (Jiggers).
Yours very truly,
(Bishop) WM. TAYLOR.
American Methodist Episcopal Mission.

LORD CARRICK says HOMOCEA cured him of bleeding piles, when all else failed; that he gave it to a Dockworker who was laimed by a stone falling upon him, whom it cured. A woman had a sore leg for above sixty years and had tried it for a year, and it cured her, and another used it for a year, and it cured her, and it was doing her good—one letter from Texas with the Doctor's name. "It is the most wonderful remedy that I ever came across."

LADY VINCENT, writing from London, says: "HOMOCEA is the best and most effective remedy for Rheumatic Neuralgia, that she wishes to have two more tins sent."
HOMOCEA

"TOUCHES THE SPOT,"
is so valuable a remedy that no one can really afford to be without it.
All wholesale houses stock HOMOCEA. It can be obtained from Chemists and others at 1s. 1½d. or 2s. 9d. per tin. It will be sent by post for 2s. 6d. and 2s. 6d. from the wholesale agency, 21, Hamilton Square, Birmingham.

WOODWARD'S "GRIPE WATER."
SAFE. PALATABLE. EFFICACIOUS.
FOR ALL DISORDERS OF INFANTS AND CHILDREN. ALSO FOR NERVOUSNESS, HYSTERIA, AND CONVULSIONS.

HOW THE WORLD WAGS IN EAST ANGLIA.!
ITEM-PERSONAL AND IMPERSONAL, PITHY AND PERTINENT.
TOLD BY OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.

BECCLES CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.—The Rev. W. Heather, M.A., of Colchester, has intimated his acceptance of the pastorate of the Congregational Church.

BACTON: PARISH COUNCIL ELECTION.—One of the hardest fought elections in this district was decided on Monday last. The Rev. Mr. Hurrell and his friends attempt was made to form a political Council regardless of all parish interests. The principal parishioners did all in their power to avoid an election, and were quite willing to allow a majority of labourers, which generously offer was unanimously rejected. In consequence of the nomination of Mr. A. G. Andrews, of Haughley, a professed politician, and one who has not the slightest interest in the parish of Bacton (Council) whose withdrawal was insisted upon and stoutly refused, a contest became inevitable. The electors took sides—for Andrews and extreme Radicalism, and always been on Conservative and no politics. The result is a grand victory for the latter, who carried all their nine candidates by sweeping majorities, Mr. Andrews only polling 76 votes out of 160, in spite of the cry of "No parsons." Of 108 voters who could possibly attend, 101 recorded their votes, with a very few absentees. Result declared Saturday, 7th: T. F. Woods, 64; C. H. Woods, 59; Baker, 58; Brown, 57; Harris, 56; Davey, 55; Fisher, 55; and Thurman, 54. Notcutes of Stowupland, 40; Bates, 38; Shave, 37; Ford, 36; Palfrey, 34; Farrow, 33; and A. G. Andrews, 23.

BECCLES: ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT BY LABOURER.—Walter Charles Woolnough, labourer, Beccles, was charged on remand before the Bench with having embezzled £4 3s., paid to him for his master, Mr. W. Woolnough, hay dealer. The prisoner gave his evidence in a straightforward manner, stating that a warrant was out against him. He was remanded.

BRENDFIELD: LANTERN ENTERTAINMENT.—On Friday last, Mr. Hopburn, of Bradfield, gave a magic lantern entertainment in the Village Hall. It was thought that it would be a great boon if they could change their Penny Readings, but this proposal was rejected about £3. Programme:—Prologue (encored), F. Hall; procession drill (encored), school children; song, "Rosalie" (encored), Miss Hopburn; song, "Sweet and Low" (encored), Mr. Fiske (encored); comic interludes (encored), three school boys; song, "Constancy" (encored), Miss Wilson; song, "Fire" by Miss Radford; song, "Rule Britannia," Miss Radford; song, "Rule Britannia," Miss Radford; song, "Rule Britannia,"

Our ancestors primeval in long ages past
In caverns and burrows did dwell.
Nature's garb was their fashion, for clothes they'd no passion;
Much salt was the sign of the swell.

The shoemaker and tailor were not in demand,
Yet the potter his trade did pursue,
For deep underground prying moderns have found
Of pre-historic pots not a few.

With the good housewife then in 10,000 B.C.,
Though primitive all were her ways,
Her principal care was her crockery ware,
Oh! would it were so in these days.

Now, rouse ye, good housewives, example pray take
From your fossil'd ancestors old.
For your Christmas supplies, before puddings or pies,
Go first where the crockery is sold.

At A. Cornish's Warehouse you're certain to find,
Low priced and quality best,
Plates, Dishes and Mugs, Knives, Glasses and Jugs,
When you've bought them you'll feel yourselves blest.

THE TYRANNY OF ONE HOUSE.

There is one consideration with regard to this question of the House of Lords which seems to have been entirely neglected by the Radical party, viz., whether the country at large desires to see the House of Commons enthroned as absolute sovereign, without the smallest check upon its will. The United Kingdom is made up of a vast multiplicity of interests, which are not likely to admire any such arrangement. In the words of Mr. Disraeli, in his work with his usual incisiveness, in an article upon "Lord Rosebery's Plan," in this month's National Review. "It is difficult," he says, "to see where the force is to come from which will compel the varied interests of this country to expose themselves to this peril. The longer the struggle lasts the more carefully men will study the ways of the House of Commons, the sovereign to whose tender mercies they are to be consigned. They will realise that, there, party government is rapidly coming to an end, government by an irresponsible, blindly fulfilling the bargains which its conductors have made in order to procure the votes of practical or self-interested groups. The more familiar they become with its procedure and its springs of action at the present time, the less disposed will they be to surrender to its uncontrolled discretion either the rights of classes who are in a minority or the unity of the Empire." In this connection it is well to remember that Oliver Cromwell himself was converted by the logic of stern facts to the necessity of a Second Chamber. The Rump Parliament beheaded the King and abolished the House of Lords, and was in its turn driven out by the Protestor and his armed soldiery. The Commonwealth was then placed under Cromwell and a single Chamber. Meanwhile this very rupture between the Protestor and Parliament had induced a deep distrust in the minds of the officers of omnipotent Parliament. They had learned, as they said in one of their declarations in 1647, "that Parliament privileges, as well as Royal prerogatives, may be perverted and abused, to the destruction of those greater ends for whose protection and preservation they were intended, viz., the rights and liberties of the people." A House of Commons of unlimited powers, always in session, not content with its proper business of legislating, but taking upon itself, by its Committees, to supersede the ordinary courts of law, uniting in itself the legislative, judicial, and executive powers, seemed to Cromwell and his officers "the horridest arbitrariness that ever was exercised in the world." The result was that the Protector was obliged to re-constitute a Second Chamber, to provide a check or balancing-power to the own self-elected Commons, and to guarantee to all Englishmen those indefeasible rights and liberties which had been jeopardised by the existence of a single Chamber. This is an object-lesson in history which is worth remembering at the present juncture.

LORD ROSEBERY'S DECLINE.

The feature of the autumn recess has undoubtedly been the decline and fall of Lord Rosebery's reputation. Coming after so marvellous a Parliamentarian as Mr. Gladstone, it was to be expected that, by contrast, the new Premier would be heavily handicapped. Nevertheless he was at once acclaimed as a perfect leader of the piebald party, and started his course in absolutely a fervour of admiration and confidence on the part of the Liberal party. Only Mr. Labouchere dissented, and his dissent was overborne and scouted in a manner which he has neither forgiven nor forgotten. Little by little the gilt has worn off the gingerbread leader of the Ministry, but the impression has gradually deepened that, after all, the great opportunist wirepuller is only an amateur statesman, utterly out of all touch with his own party, and with the people of Great Britain. Lord Rosebery is now recognised by every shade of politicians as a mere wobbler. He is always explaining, and never getting nearer to the explanation. When he tried to explain away that celebrated remark about the "predominant partner," he only left the impression that he did not know whether he was in favour of Home Rule or not. His explanation about Disestablishment was worse than none, and left his audience under the idea that he really knew and cared very little about churches. Ever since the Premier embarked upon his campaign against the House of Lords his utterances have been a series of wobble s highly embarrassing to his own party. In Scotland he left everyone under the impression that he was determined to reform the House of Lords, and the "members" of that Institution rejoiced exceedingly. Then the "orders" seem to have frightened Lord Rosebery with Mr. Asquith's speech at Birmingham, and at Devonport any attempt to alter the Constitution of the Upper House is out of the question. At one moment he says that it is impossible to touch the House of Lords without their consent, and almost in the same breath asks for a mandate from the House of Commons, and then from the country, to carry out the impossible. No wonder he puzzles and perturbs his own party by the account he gives of his own policy. His Ministry remains of the same mind for a week together, and as he is practically the sole exponent of this unknown policy, the matter is fast assuming the ridiculous. The results of Lord Rosebery's leadership are best seen in the attitude of his own party. Sir W. Harcourt refuses to appear upon a public platform from August to January. He is announced to address his constituents a few days before Parliament meets, and it is quite possible his speech may be of unexpected importance. The Cabinet is known to be in a state of chaos, and the brand new "revolution," and Mr. Labouchere, as usual, is stirring up the embers of discord in the rank and file of the party.

Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., last Sunday, in his own paper, openly said of Lord Rosebery: —"There is active and incessant campaigning against him in his own party. . . . The game has been to hint that he is insincere in all his professions of Radical views, and that therefore every word he says is to be sifted for the purpose of discovering the least bit of dishonesty—the hidden subterfuge and the contingent escape." Such is the frank admission of one who is in the Radical swim," and it is a charming illustration of the way in great Liberal party is treating its own chosen leader. His failure must indeed be great when he has not been able to hold a party together for nine months.

LORD ROSEBERY'S JOKES.

There is no more interesting psychological study than that of Lord Rosebery as a joker. There is such an earnestness about him when he perpetrates a joke that one wonders how him best are apt to misinterpret him. Fortunately his Premiership is sinecure office, so that time and opportunity are always afforded him to explain the joke. Indeed, it seems as if his meetings had been purposely arranged in duplicate, one close upon the other, the first to enable him to let the joke off, and the second to explain it. When it is explained there is no doubt that the laughter is loud and general, and there is this great advantage about the method he adopts, that the explanation is generally all kinds of solutions are adopted, and the interest, instead of being a passing one, is kept up for some day or two, till the solution is given. The jokes are generally followed, it is true, by disaster, but therein lies their intensity and depth. Of such a keen and grim joker a record of the most noteworthy ebullitions of humour will always prove entertaining. His first great joke was about "the new Liberalism," which was to be introduced before conversion of the predominant partner was "taken for granted." The full explanation of this joke was not made generally public; all that was repeated of it was that Lord Rosebery did not mean what he said. But its full details must have been vastly amusing, for the Irish, who had risen in arms against him, were evidently greatly tickled with it into ominous threats; and that it was generally considered satisfactory is evidenced by the loss of Conservative seats in which this joke of importance was that, in effect, every manse of the Established Church in Scotland was the home of a Tory organiser. This joke was very fully explained some short time afterwards, and the result was the loss of Forfarshire. A third joke was his statement "that he was a two-Chamber man," and "that to abolish the veto was to let ministers and purposes to do away with a second Chamber." The explanation that he meant to abolish the veto and reduce practically the Parliamentary Chambers to one came after the loss of Brigg, but by this time a glimmering of the nature of his jokes had dawned upon the minds of the electors, so that to some extent its explanation had been seen beforehand. His fourth great joke, namely, that the majority of the educated class were against him, is not altogether new. It had been perpetrated by his great leader, Mr. Gladstone. The effect of this joke has still to be seen; as to the disastrous effect of all, in which he has laid out his plans from this into the far future, although at Glasgow he held that no more than one or two first-class measures could be passed in any one session, and although he and the most intelligent of his colleagues foresee a very early dissolution to their tenure of office.

"H.M.S. Pinafore."

The Ipswich Operatic Company, encouraged by their success with the "Pirates of Penzance" and "Trial by Jury," have practically decided—though the matter is not absolutely settled—to produce in the spring another of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, probably "H.M.S. Pinafore," which ranked the wittiest of the three, and if they proceed to its study soon, may look forward to a fine performance early in April.

Ipswich Conservative Association.

We understand that Mr. W. A. Churchman has been approached with a view to his becoming President of the Ipswich Conservative Association, in succession to the late Mr. Alderman Stanhope Tollemache, and we hope that he will accept the position. Mr. Churchman has already rendered valuable service to the party, and in so doing, has been following in the footsteps of his father, who for a considerable number of years was the representative of the Westgate Ward on the Town Council.

Middenhall Otters.

Mr. Howlett, the Newmarket naturalist, has been directing attention in a sporting contemporary to the numerous otters to be found in the river Lark, in the neighbourhood of Mildenhall, at Barton Mills. He adds that should any pack of otter hounds be established in the two next sportsmen they will be gladly welcomed. It is somewhat remarkable that none of the gentry in the locality of the otters have not established a pack ere this.

Publicans and Politics.

The Westminster Gazette of Saturday contained a startling piece of advice in its editorial leader on the vestry elections, "Never vote for a publican." This is the cry now adopted for a party whose leaders, such as Lord Rosebery, the holder of £10,000 debentures in McEwan and Co., brewers, Edinburgh; Lord Tweedmouth, a chief owner of Guinness's Brewery, Dublin; Sir Edward Hamilton, M.P., of Stansfeld and Co., and are so deeply interested in public-house property. After such advice the wonder is can a publican vote the Westminster Gazette way?

Continuation Classes.

The Ipswich School Board are much more fortunate than many other similar bodies in relation to their evening continuation classes. In many parts of the country these classes are starved, and that the evening classes are sparsely attended, and that those for whose benefit they are intended fail to take advantage of this excellent branch of educational work. In Ipswich, however, a contrary condition of things obtains, and the Ipswich School Board the Rev. W. J. Garrould was able to report that not only was increased interest taken in the evening classes, but also that the students now number 1,171, with an average attendance of 700 nightly, or an increase of 200 since last year. The recently established class for instruction in the violin had attracted no less than eighty pupils. The rising generation of Ipswich evidently likes educational facilities which were not thought of in their father's days.

Labour Federations.

Unpleasant revelation from the Labour standpoint of view is again made in our columns this week respecting the Norfolk and Norwich Labourers' Union, of which Mr. Geo. Edwards (well known in Diss and Eye Districts) is secretary. The balance sheet of that Union, as supplied by his Chief Registrar, reveals a shocking state of affairs, which labourers would do well to bear in mind. The income for a year is stated to have been £211, while the salaries of officials, &c., for a like period amounted to £205 4s. 9d., or £45 more than the actual income. Grants to members absorbed £69 19s., so that for every £1 distributed £3 10s. was disbursed in expenses! We have already exposed several other Labour Unions in which the labourers paid their hard-earned money, and we should advise the working-men of Diss, Eye, Stowmarket, &c., when next the advocates of the Norfolk and Norwich Labour Union (accompanied by the Land Nationalisation Leaguer) pay them a visit to demand an explanation of the above figures, failing which to drum the agitators out of the place.

Post Office Pressure.

This is the time of year when the public may assist the postal officials by a little well-deserved consideration, and in a notice which he has just issued the Postmaster-General says that during the coming Christmas season the regular transmission and prompt delivery of letters, parcels, and Christmas and New Year's cards will be facilitated if the public will post their letters, parcels, &c., as early in the day as possible on the 20th (to-day), 24th, and 25th, and specially on Saturday and Monday, the 22nd and 24th inst. As Christmas Day falls on Tuesday, Christmas cards and parcels should, as far as practicable, be posted during the previous week; at all events not later than Saturday next. Letters addressed to foreign countries should be handed over the counter of a post-office on the 21st, 22nd, and 24th inst., in order to prevent the delay which might occur if they were posted in the ordinary boxes. It will be necessary very generally to close the letter boxes at provincial post-offices earlier than usual on the 24th and 31st inst.

A Light Railway for Cambs.

At the recent meeting of the preference shareholders in the G.E.R. the chairman (Lord Claud Hamilton) explained the Company's proposals in connection with the new railway in Parliament next Session for the construction of a light railway as a branch of their line in Cambridgeshire. He said they had been approached by some local landowners and farmers, who offered to provide the land free of cost for the construction of the line if the Company would work it. The directors had, therefore, decided to make the railway themselves and work it, provided they got the necessary land at ordinary agricultural values, and that it should be for a limited period only. It would be a good experiment, and if it was successful it would no doubt be followed in many other parts of the country. Coming as a genuine attempt to assist the agriculturist, the experiment was undoubtedly to be watched with interest throughout Great Britain.

A Pauper's Verses.

While anxious enough to see agriculture dealt with scientific thorough-ness, we have never (says a journal devoted to the landed interest) thought much of, or expected much from, the efforts which are being made to teach it at Cambridge. A correspondent of ours has put into verse such a subject. We have before us some figures relating to the first examination in agricultural science which took place at Cambridge last July. There were fifteen examiners for twelve candidates, ten of whom passed. Also, "Book-keeping and book-keeping—dignified matters for an ancient University to examine in! The expenses exceeded £42, and the receipts were only £27; hence a deficit of more than £15. It would thus appear that agriculture is a dear subject at the Universities. Let us hope that a few more such experiences will satisfy the University of Cambridge that it has had enough of this kind of thing.

Committee decided by a majority of one that no beer should be allowed the inmates this Christmas; the question came before the Board for confirmation, and in seconding the amendment, Dr. Alderson said he would like to read a few lines which had reached him by post—they were headed, "A prayer from the Workhouse to Dr. Abraham," and were as follows:—

"Now, Doctor, do whate'er you can
To get poor folks their beer;
Let not the aged be poorly, soods
Deprive us of our cheer,
And we will drink your jolly health,
Both man and woman too,
And swear that you're the best and never was
A canny man like you."

Needless to say the amendment was carried by 14 to 9, and the paupers will have the pleasure of drinking the Doctor's jolly good health.

In addition the collection embraces a very valuable set of private telegraph stamps used by the various offices before the Government bought up the companies. Perhaps the most interesting feature is some 600 essays and designs which were sent in prior to the introduction of the penny postage, on the 6th of May, 1840. The prize paid by Messrs. Stanley Gibbons is said to be nearly £2,000.

He suggested that if the County Council did not see its way clear to maintain the bridge the Board should close it, and so get closed, except for foot passengers.—Mr. Marriott suggested that possibly the County Council would meet the Board half way in the matter.—Mr. G. J. Gosting, however, proposed that the matter be referred to the new District Council for their consideration.—The Clerk read a letter from the Local Government Board, asking as to the appointment of a medical officer, and it was resolved that Dr. Bond be appointed, commencing 31st December next. They had planted 41 acres of land for a new cemetery and allotments, for which they paid a sum of £95 16s. 6d., and received £30 per year for the land over them for many years, and he thought their thanks were due to him for the kind yet firm manner in which he had conducted their meetings. THE PARISH COUNCILS GAZETTE.

AN UNFORTUNATE DISCOVERY.

"LOOK UPON THIS PICTURE AND ON THIS."

Much amusement has been caused by the London Globe publishing two circular letters issued in the interests of the Parish and District Councils Gazette and Municipal Record. The editor of this paper has written to the proprietors of the Globe complaining that he was quite unaware of the existence of the paper, and enclosing two letters about the paper, one of which, another two, have fallen into our hands, we publish them, so that the public may see the tone of the letters issued in the interests of the new Parish Councils paper. Some newspaper editors would only be too pleased to have one of the writers pulling up their newspaper, especially as the latter would probably pay for the insertion of all charge. They must have done so, for the editor of the Parish Councils Gazette declares that he has not authorised any one to write these letters on behalf of his paper. However, here are the letters:—

"From Rev. W. Sharpe, Baptist Chapel House,
Crowborough, Wrightson, Sussex,
"November 29th, 1894.

"Dear Friend,—I have taken a very active part on behalf of what I consider the important event of the launching of the Parish and District Councils Gazette, and friends of mine have done the same. I feel that the establishment, I venture for two reasons, as a fellow Nonconformist, particularly ask for it your support. 1st. I think it right that the Nonconformist element should take an active interest in the new Councils, to prevent the labourers' cottages from being the influence which I need not name, and as this paper, I believe, intends to serve us impartially, will be the recognised medium for the same. 2nd. As a Dissenter, it appears to me important that it should not lack full Nonconformist support. 2nd. I should always, before according distinct support in such a matter, wish to be first satisfied that it is in the right hands. In the present case, as is already indicated, I am assured on that point. Now, as a friend and fellow-worker, I feel it right to the conductors, and in the interests of ourselves as Nonconformists to ask you, if possible, to become a subscriber, and to interest as many as you can of your congregation as possible to do the same. I am doing my part, and I am sure that their efforts will be church nearly 37 years, feel that in the interests of our own people I ought also to take a place on our parish Council here, as I am pressed to do by other ministers. I know, especially as important charities are concerned. I have asked the conductors to supply me with a specimen number of the prospectus to enclose with this letter, which under the circumstances I feel sure you will excuse.—Believe me, yours truly,

"W. Sharpe.

"St. Stephen's Vicarage, Albert Square,
Clapham, S.W.

"Dear Sir,—As the Parish Councils Act introduces a most important considerations into the government of our parish affairs, it is essential that Churchmen should take a fully active interest in them, and as the representative organ of these new bodies must have considerable influence, I feel it to be important to Church interests that the newspapers should be assured of full Church support, seeing that Nonconformists are sure to accord this and be a strong part in the affairs of the Councils. I have been asked to address a letter embodying these views to a certain number of clergymen, and as I have had over than for many years, and he thought their thanks were due to him for the kind yet firm manner in which he had conducted their meetings. (Applause.) A vote of thanks was also passed to the officers and servants of the Board, on whose behalf Mr. S. Prentice replied.

Decorations, which were tasteful and effective, were carried out under the superintendence of Captain Wilmer and Lady Blois. The floor was in splendid condition. A marquee erected between the hotel and the ballroom made an agreeable retiring apartment, being adorned with flags and well furnished with sofas and chairs. Refreshments and light wines were carried with crimson cloth, light refreshments were set out in the coffee-room, and an elegant supper in the ballroom, which was lighted by brilliant arc lamps. The ball began at half-past nine o'clock to the strains of the Diss Excelsior Band. The company numbered more than 100, among those present being the Duchess of Strabbroke, Lady Gwendoline Ross, Col. CHORAL SOCIETY CONCERT AT FELIXSTOWE.

The members of the Felixstowe Choral Society, which comprises vocalists from Felixstowe and Trimley, gave their first concert of the season in the Victoria Hall on Thursday, upon the result of which both the conductor (Mr. Levett Blois) and Mr. T. Palmer, L.R.A.M., Bac.) deserve congratulation. There was a large and appreciative audience present, the comfort of visitors from Ipswich and elsewhere being looked after by special late train run by the G.E.R. Company. Capt. E. G. Pretyman is president of the Union and Mr. Felix Cobbold vice-president. The first part of the concert enjoyable and well executed programme consisted of Rootsberg's "Lay of the Bell," with a miscellaneous selection of music after the interval. The principal pieces: Miss Amy Harding (soprano), Mr. D'Arcy Clayton (tenor), and Mr. Blois (bass). Mr. Blois is a good vocalist of high repute. The chorus was composed of nearly 100 voices, and the band was made up as follows:—Violins—Messrs. Bowles, Cox, Jay, Jackson, Mr. J. B. King, Mr. J. Cooper, Mr. C. IPSWICH WORKHOUSE MASTER'S PENSION.

ANIMATED DISCUSSION.

After the ordinary business at the meeting of the Ipswich Board of Guardians on Friday Mr. John Pells (senior vice-chairman, who did not secure re-election for St. Margaret's this week, said that this was the last meeting of the Board at which he would be present to attend, and he should like, therefore, to thank the Board for the great kindness and courtesy they had shown him. In thinking back there was well he wished them success in their work.—The Chairman (Mr. S. H. Ransome) said he was sure they would join with Mr. Pells in saying that it was a pleasure to them to have had his services. He (Mr. Ransome) had always appreciated the services of other members of the Board he must say that Mr. Pells had been one of the most useful members of the Board. His attendance at meetings and his well-deserved success been obtained, and the London and provincial press are unanimous in their praise. The Daily Telegraph declares "That the audience laughed incessantly for two good hours, and that Mr. Neville Beauchamp was the first to break out at the top of the form by universal acclamation." The Referee says:—"Mr. Arthur Law has hit the right spot in his new play, 'The Man in the Moon,' the most excruciatingly funny things I have seen for years." Truth, says:—"The thirdact is as good as the first. The play is a success, and deserves to be." The "New Boy" will be a very old boy indeed before the public has done with him."

The Lyceum Theatre, Ipswich, will open on Boxing Day with Mr. Fred. G. Latham's Company, in "The Man from Mexico." The performance will be repeated Mrs. Mr. Tanqueray on Saturday following. Christmas Day there will be a matinée performance. "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray" is one of Mr. Pinero's masterpieces, and Ipswich theatre-goers should not miss this opportunity of seeing it.

At the examination in music held in Ipswich, Miss Florence Violet Hayward, of Abbotts Hall, Stowmarket, pupil of Miss J. Salmon, passed in the "Intermediate" London College of Music.

PARISH COUNCILS ELECTIONS IN SUFFOLK.

THE LABOURER'S CHARTER OF LIBERTY.

The sap was going to set in were held, before the Parish Councils elections took place, and we were assured, by the Radical village demagogues that the whole of the clergy, squirearchy, and middle-class people would reign supreme; that, in short, the millenium was just arriving. Now worthy they have been disappointed in the result from the figures as published below. Where there were no contested elections the labourer has a majority of representatives on the Council, but where a poll has been demanded the results have, indeed, been regrettable. Our returns are by no means complete, but they are sufficient to show that labourers have omitted to state the employment of the candidates, but still the figures that we give will afford much food for reflection. In Suffolk, the Local Government Act has proved abortive. The untruthful pamphlets that were given away broadcast on the meeting have proved to be worthless. Hodge won't be any longer bamboozled. We have omitted to see that the extension of the franchise was confidence well placed. The returns from what were hitherto considered the Radical strongholds of Suffolk, the agricultural labourers, clearly show that the ballot is the best friend of the upholders of the Constitution. There the voters are safe from the terrorism of the agitator. Take, for instance, the cases of Coddenham, Haughley, and East Bergholt. We could cite other instances, but these are the best for our purpose on hand. At Coddenham, on a show of hands being taken, the Vicar only received a few votes, and a poll was therefore demanded, and on the result of the ballot being declared the farmer received 52 votes and the clergyman was returned at the head of the poll. Seven men were elected at all, and the same took place at East Bergholt. In every case a compromise was offered to the labourers, but they would not have it. Fear was exp

SUFFOLK FAT CATTLE SHOW.

QUALITY ABOVE THE AVERAGE.

The annual show of the Ipswich Fat Cattle Club was held in the Drill Hall and specially erected adjacent buildings on Monday and Tuesday. The Club is fortunate in providing an exhibition which appeals alike to the agriculturists and the townspeople, the stock section being well prized, and the ladies' department made exceptionally attractive. The unfavourable weather days ago somewhat affected the attendance, but in the afternoons and evenings there was a large muster. The president for the year is Mr. W. Cuthbert Quilter, M.P., who showed by his presence the keen interest he took in the undertaking. He was supported by the Mayor of Ipswich (Mr. Alderman J. Read), Colonel Packard, jun. (vice-presidents). The number of cattle entered was one below that of last year, but the quality was superior to any former show, and, indeed, there has been seen in Ipswich for a long time. The class for pens of sheep was poor or cross-bred was a very fine one, and included a bullock belonging to Mr. W. E. Learner, which has been at seven shows, and been rewarded three times for it and for a heifer, but was here disqualified as having passed the limit age of three years. The first prize for similar animals in 1893 and fell to Mr. Learner's 17 stone was taken by Messrs. Alderton and Wrinch, and the second by Mr. W. S. Everett, with a cross between a Shorthorn and Lincoln, and both were pretty close. Heifers do not make a popular class as compared with steers, one reason, no doubt, being labour, but they do not look so well, the proportion of fat to lean being greater. They, however, made a good show. Mr. Rudland's heifer considered the better middle, and consequently to be more symmetrical, and therefore took the first prize. In the class for pens of calves Mr. Robert Stevenson, of Norwich Road, won easily with Stolby Salisbury, which he bought at Mr. Spurling's sale. In the class for pens of oxen or heifers there was an exceedingly sharp competition. Mr. Rudland was first with Devons, the steer having taken the gold cup in London and the heifer a bullock belonging to Mr. W. E. Learner, which has been at seven shows, and been rewarded three times for it and for a heifer, but was here disqualified as having passed the limit age of three years. The first prize for similar animals in 1893 and fell to Mr. Learner's 17 stone was taken by Messrs. Alderton and Wrinch, and the second by Mr. W. S. Everett, with a cross between a Shorthorn and Lincoln, and both were pretty close. Heifers do not make a popular class as compared with steers, one reason, no doubt, being labour, but they do not look so well, the proportion of fat to lean being greater. They, however, made a good show. Mr. Rudland's heifer considered the better middle, and consequently to be more symmetrical, and therefore took the first prize. In the class for pens of calves Mr. Robert Stevenson, of Norwich Road, won easily with Stolby Salisbury, which he bought at Mr. Spurling's sale. In the class for pens of oxen or heifers there was an exceedingly sharp competition. Mr. Rudland was first with Devons, the steer having taken the gold cup in London and the heifer the silver cup under the year-old animals of the season. Mr. Learner was second with a pair of Hereford heifers. The similar class for steers, calves, and heifers in the county of Suffolk was of the most important in the show, for here farmers could exhibit without loss of money, and consequently animals were here represented, there being no fewer than eleven entries. The quality may be gathered from the fact that three cups were awarded, one being in addition to the ordinary premium. The judges were of opinion that a red poll sent by Mr. Snell, of Nettlestead Hall, was entitled to be one of the three. It was old, was the best animal, but on the dentition test it appeared to be over two years. The second prize could be made out to be the best animal from the man who eated it down, and the disqualification of the first left the second prize the best one. Mr. Rudland, who was second and had reserve for the champion cup, was to be congratulated on his first prize and the championship. His exhibit was a fine cross-bred. Mr. Snell had another red poll reserved, which will thus take rank as the best of the class for the championship for the best heifer with a very promising animal. A pair of cross-breds, belonging to Mr. Bulwinkle, of Rushbrook Market, took the first for pair of fat beasts over-reared in a large class. Mr. Berners took the special offered by Messrs. Read and Co. for the magnificent Devon. The entry of sheep was below the average. Mr. Joseph Smith took the championship for the best pen of Suffolks, that of Smithfield were second in their class to another pen belonging to him which here were placed second to them. Mr. Hipkins had some fine Shropshires and Suffolks, and Mr. Smith a very promising pen of lambs. Swine were strongly represented. Lord Rendlesham was the principal winner of the pens for cured bacon. Hams were good for the season, but unfortunately some of the finer ones when cut into were found to be rather dry, and the prizes fell to the smaller specimens. The yellow turnips and swedes were part curiously noticeable. There was not much competition in the trial to the class for vegetables and fruit raised by cottagers and holders of allotments not exceeding 100 rods. The prizes are given by Messrs. Read and Co., and there is the sole condition that the produce be grown in the open.

THE LADIES' DEPARTMENT

Again formed a most attractive feature of the exhibition, and there the objects of greatest interest were the table decorations, no fewer than eight tables having been laid out for competition. It was a very difficult task in setting the order of merit, and even then, as must always happen, a few individual visitors' views and opinions were more or less criticised. The first prize went to a very delicate and graceful arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums, which was the work of Mrs. Official flowers, by Miss M. Green, of Paget Road, Ipswich. The second prize was taken by Miss M. Fiton, whose work was in white and pink, and was also hoary; the principal flowers were yellow chrysanthemums, ferns and smilax. Miss Green, who was third with a very pretty arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums, smilax, and smilax. Miss Girling, of St. Mary Elms, Witnesham, was fourth with a very fine artistic decoration of white and yellow chrysanthemums—so good, indeed, though a first effort, that it would probably have taken a higher position if it had not been thought that violets do not show well in an artificial light. Miss Harlock was also made a very creditable effort in a skilful arrangement of flowers, vardiers, margeries and ferns. In the class for groups of flowers the first prize fell to Mrs. Beer, of Spring Road, Ipswich, put in a magnificent collection, remarkable, however, more for the variety and uniform excellence of the blooms than for the effect they made. Among the best were the giant cyclamen, the asparagus procumbens, lady's slipper, zonlas, begonias, hyacinths, chrysanthemums, and a very fine collection of foliage plants. Mr. C. Clover was second with a varied and beautiful exhibit, and Mr. Notcutt third, with a choice group (including a number of cut blooms) of large enough. Mrs. George Gilbert, of Ipswich, showed her usual admirable taste in the class for a basket of flowers, both with bridal and ball room bouquets. Passing to the dairy produce it was noticeable that the entries were not so numerous as usual, but that the quality very meritorious. A few samples were deficient in colour, but others presented a good appearance should be a skilful arrangement of butter, margarines, and farm. In the class for groups of dairy produce the first fell to Mr. Beer, of Spring Road, Ipswich, put in a magnificent collection, remarkable, however, more for the variety and uniform excellence of the samples

AGRICULTURAL LETTER.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

The Live Stock Journal Almanac is always most interesting, containing much useful information to farmers and all connected with stock breeding. The copy for 1895, just issued, is no exception. Writers on special topics include William King, who contributes an article on Suffolk horses; H. F. Ewen on red polled cattle; and Ernest Prentice on Suffolk sheep, each of these writers giving a summary of the show yards and sales of the respective breeds, and a description of the principal events during the past year.

Earl Winchilsea is to be congratulated upon the success of the annual meeting of the National Agricultural Union, held at St. James's Hall last week. If ever there was a time when the three parties interested in this ancient and great industry, viz., the cultivation of the soil, the landlord and the tenant, should sink their differences and fight side by side for the revival of agriculture and the readjustment of taxation, it is now. The landlord, with his land saleable, the farmer on the brink of insolvency, the labourer now experiencing a slight decrease of wages, and a probability of a greater decrease, together with the scarcity of employment—these three parties all suffering from one cause, namely, the low price of wheat, surely the National Agricultural Union should have no difficulty in compelling them under her banner, to fight in one common cause against the present disastrous state of affairs, and to see whether if the existing price of wheat cannot be made more remunerative, there are not some burdens now imposed on the land which might be alleviated, and some slight inducement offered for us to retain in cultivation the small quantity of arable land we now have in this country. Lord Winchilsea announced that in the affiliated Societies there were between 45,000 and 50,000 members belonging to the Association; 367 branches had been established in different parts of the country; 67 Rural Councils had been elected, and there was a Central Council whose deliberations were characterised by harmony and common sense.

Probably I feel rather more strongly on the point of amalgamation than the majority of my rural friends, but I must say that I think it is a duty, a pure and simple duty, on the part of all connected in any way large or small a way with this agricultural world of ours, to join this one Union, the principles of which, moreover, as far as your humble servant can discern, contain nothing objectionable to whatever creed or party in politics a man belongs. It does not suffice to stand on one side, to be a spectator only, thinking, "Well, if there is to be any benefit done to the land interest, I shall come in for a share." The support and help of each one is needed now, therefore give in your name as a member, and you not only swell the members' list, but there is one less who is interested in the land who does not hold aloof. Let the greater part of these three agricultural parties be united under this one banner, and no English Parliament can stand against it.

The public will see that, as those in other industries have done before us, we are determined to make our voice heard, and by the power of a huge army of voters in our ranks we can command attention, and as far as lieth in us our grievances rectified. Unity is indeed strength.

Lord Winchilsea said, as to the possibility of forming an agricultural party, he might mention that the position of affairs at the present time was that the programme of the Union had been accepted by 173 members of Parliament or candidates in its entirety, while 67 members and candidates accepted the programme in part, so that the total number of members of Parliament who were either in full or in part with the Union was 240. This was without counting the Irish members, who, when no more burning questions were before the House, might be supposed to support agricultural matters, so that the advocates of an agricultural party in the House of Commons were in the presence of the nucleus of one of the most formidable parties that could possibly be imagined in this or any other country.

The following resolutions were unanimously carried:—"That this Congress, believing that the time has now come when the safety of agriculture imperatively demands the return of a strong body of members pledged to give precedence over every other reform to such measures as may be necessary to secure a real and national industry, and to support them without distinction of party, is convinced that the first duty of every agriculturist at this crisis is to give his hearty support in that behalf to the N.A.U.; and, in view of the approaching general election, urges every rural voter, before he promises his vote, to make sure that a candidate not only accepts the programme of the Union, but will insist that the first claim upon the time and attention of Parliament shall be given to the just demands of agriculture."

"That this Congress, being assured that the experiments lately conducted on the Cable Farm prove that grass best could be largely grown in England to a profit (thus providing employment for thousands of labourers and an outlet for British capital), if it were not for the unfair competition of bounty-fed sugar, records its opinion that bounties granted by foreign Governments in order to enable their subjects to drive English growers out of British markets, are in accordance neither with Free Trade nor Fair Trade, but are acts of commercial war and industrial piracy, against which English producers ought to be guaranteed by a duty equal to the amount of the bounty; and is of opinion that a further injustice is inflicted upon them by secs. 12 and 13 of the Beer Duty Act, which penalises brewers who desire to use second-class barley if it competes them to resort to bounty-fed sugar and other substitutes for malt in the production of beer."

"That this Congress warmly supports the provision of State-aided pensions for working men, as an encouragement to thrift, and a valuable supplement to the work of Friendly societies."

The annual exhibition of the Suffolk Fat Cattle Club tends to remind us of the near approach of Christmas; most assuredly if it were not for our calendar and the recurrence of these preceding events, we should doubt that we were drawing near to the end of English farm season. Certainly for the last five-and-twenty years I cannot recall one instance when the autumn was held to open as this of 1894. What an unlooked-for help to the land has been for stock breeders and flock-masters. Some farmers were anxious as to their turnips, so meeting trouble half-way, also speculating as to what they should do, as there were some turnips on each and such a field would not keep on account of the rapid growth of the season, and of this wished they had sown. Although there are acres and acres of both swedes and turnips begging for some flockmaster to feed off, it is a great question, whether in the mind of a sharp frost coming upon us in December, if both these varieties of roots would not have much decomposed, and practically have become hurtful to our flocks, more especially swedes, where they were drilled early, for even now we see on some lands many when being pressed for changing—no more are fed decayed.

The Committee, and certainly the Secretary of the Ipswich Christmas Show, are entitled to the warmest thanks and congratulations of the East Anglian agriculturists, and also of the town of Ipswich at large. It is a few years since the Society with the total receipts at the gate being some £44 short of last year's taking, that the Committee will not be able to show a very prosperous balance-sheet. I believe this is due to the energy and perseverance of Mr. Edward Packard and Mr. Alfred Smith, and the Suffolk winter gathering was revived after a lapse of four or five years, and now appears again as annual fixture.

In proposing to the President (Mr. W. Cuthbert Quilter, M.P.), it is to be hoped that this year of nine times 7,170 people paid for admission, and from the remarks let fall, that the attractions set forth met with entire approval. In the fat beast department it has been a noticeable feature for the last few years that the time has passed for making big over-yeared bullocks; it is being neat beast at our weekly sales, as well as in the showyard, that commands the most attention. Mr. Rudland's Devon was a true type of the present day requirements, although perhaps we in East Anglia should have preferred to have seen it a red poll instead of being ornamented with the characteristic Devon horns. Mr. Cranmer's Hereford undoubtedly was a grand animal very low, being an exceptionally well-made beast, and the carrier in weight of the two. The subject of dentition so long been a vexed question, and we learn the Committee will have to decide at their next meeting as to whether the prizes were justified in passing over Mr. Turner's cross-bred. It is admitted it is difficult to avert the age of an animal within a few months, but then it comes to be a question of a year or more we shall imagine the veterinary world is capable of solving the question.

Mr. Rudland was most successful. Also we are sure to see such well-known exhibitors as Messrs. Alford, Brinkley, Dawson, and Wrinch maintaining their reputation as graziers, and we only wish prizes had been more evenly distributed. As to what feared that the other part of the cattle would prove a financial loss if stalled account were kept for the year; and in one fance I believe only a few shillings were shown for a ch's keep.

In the death of Mr. Noah Creasy, of Cranfield, a well-known Suffolk face has passed away. Born at Bottisgworth in 1825, he was in his 70th year, and few of his age have been enabled to carry on their ness for so long. Mr. Creasy was a simple character- of the deceased up to the allotted span score years and ten, of man. Possessing a warm ow-feeling for his neighbours, there is no doubt in e hard times he has been a friend to many, as his

FRIENDLY SOCIETY NOTES.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED.]

The various Lodges and Courts in Ipswich have made arrangements for quite a number of gatherings of a social and business character, which will shortly take place. Prominent among these is the united friendly societies' concert, which will take place at the Grand Café, Butter Market, next Friday, over which P.G. Bro. F. A. Bales has consented to preside.

Last week a most successful meeting of the Loyal "Orford White" Lodge of the Manchester Unity, which meets at the Red Lion, Branford Road, was held. This new Lodge, which, as we previously stated, is being worked strictly on supernumerative lines, is making rapid progress, and promises to become a valuable auxiliary to the Ipswich District, and at the last meeting several new members were initiated. There were a large number of visiting brethren present. During the meeting P.G. Bro. F. W. Chapman presented the brethren with boxes for the use of the Lodge furniture and regalia, for which he was accorded a most hearty vote of thanks.

A pleasant gathering of a social character took place on Thursday week, in connection with the "St John's" Lodge of the Manchester Unity, at the Railway Hotel, Derby Road. Bro. Westlake, N.G., Bro. Masters, V.G., and Bro. Aldous, the G.M., presided over a crowded attendance, and a capital programme was creditably gone through, one of the attractions of the evening being the presence of the Oddfellows' Band, the members of which played several choice selections of music, to the great delight of all present. Dr. J. L. Rowe, the Lodge treasurer, in felicitous terms proposed "The health of the Visitors," which was responded to by Prov. G.M. Bro. C. Watson, D.P.G.M. Bro. Geo. Fisher, P.G.M., Bro. Bro. J. Ball, J. Snelling, P.G. Bro. F. A. Bales, and other prominent local members of the Order who were present.

There was a large accession of members to the United Mechanics' Friendly Society at the Saracen's Head, Bury St. Edmund's, on Friday night, when Bro. J. V. Richardson presided over an interesting ceremony, which witnessed the initiation of Viscount Chelsea and Mr. Malcolm. The toast of "Success to the United Mechanics' Friendly Society" was proposed in happy terms by one of the new brethren (Bro. W. E. Riley), which Bro. J. Jennings acknowledged. The officers of the Society are to be congratulated on having secured, at one swoop, the largest roll of new members known in the history of the Friendly Society assembled in Bury St. Edmund's, no fewer than 38 new members being initiated on Friday.

P.G.M. Bro. John Pye was, on Wednesday, elected a member of the Ipswich Board of Guardians. We heartily congregate Bro. Pye upon his success at the ballot-box.

According to present arrangements, Earl Cadogan, K.G., will be "made" an honorary member of the West Suffolk "Social Design" Lodge of the Manchester Unity of Oddfellows during next month.

The returns for November show the Registrar-General of Friendly Societies enrolled 14 new societies, viz., ten ordinary friendly societies, one dividing institution, one specially authorised society, and two working men's clubs. New branches of existing societies were registered as follow:—I.O. Rechabites 11, A.O. Foresters 6, G.O.T.A. Sons of Phœnix 4, Manchester Unity Oddfellows 3, N.A.I.U.O.O.F. 3, and various others 15.

Manchester Unity brethren in Norfolk have lost a staunch supporter and a true friend of the friendly society cause by the death, which took place last week, of Bro. Samuel Aberdein, of Hindolveston. He was esteem in which he was held by the brethren of his (the "Hastings") Lodge and the Unity generally was manifested by the large and representative attendance at his funeral, which included Bro. H. Flowers, a Past Grand Master of the Manchester Unity, who is also an Oddfellows' service. The body was also borne to its last home by four brethren of the Lodge.

The "Amicable" Lodge of the Manchester Unity held its 53rd anniversary dinner at the Bell Hotel, Norwich, on Friday evening, when the chair was occupied by P.G. G. Garard, sheriff of Norwich. The vice-chairs were filled by P.G. Dr. Dyer and P.G. C. J. Rowley. The large and distinguished company present spent an enjoyable evening in toast and song.

The Registrar of Friendly Societies' report for 1893 is issued, and shows, for the seventh year in succession, that the I.O. Rechabites has registered the largest number of new branches. The totals are as follow for the I.O.R., Manchester Unity, the Foresters, Ashton Unity of Shepherds, and Druids:—

	England.	Scotland.	Ireland.	Total.
I.O.R.	97	39	1	137
M.U.	27	3	—	30
A.O.F.	27	2	—	29
Shepherds, A.U.	10	12	—	22
Druids	15	1	—	16

The "Lady Evelyn Cobbold" Court of Female Foresters held its second monthly meeting in the small hall of the Ipswich Co-operative Buildings, on Tuesday evening, the C.R., Sister Florence Atack, presiding. Seven new members were initiated, and the newly-elected surgeon (Mr. J. E. Stadion) attended, and received a most cordial greeting from the sisters. Mr. Stadion returned thanks for his election, and promised to exert himself to promote the success of the Court, which he felt persuaded had a prosperous future before it. The Court now numbers 23 financial members, and has numerous and influential list of patronesses and honorary members. Sister Katie Grayston, of 24, Argyle Street, is secretary to the Court.

SMACKSMAN'S FATAL LEAP AT LOWESTOFT.

John Dale, a smacksman, aged 30, of Clarence Street, Lowestoft, died in the Hospital on Monday from injuries received on the previous Thursday evening. Dale was in one of the swinging boats in the Market Place, and while it was in full motion rose from his seat to change places with his companion. He missed his hold, and was landed in the street with terrible force a distance of sixteen feet. He never fully recovered consciousness.

WOMAN'S WAYS AND WORK.

[SPECIALLY CONTRIBUTED.]

According to present arrangements the Queen will go to Cimiez, near Nice, at the end of March, and will spend a month there. She will reside at the Grand Hotel. The grounds of several of the best villas have been placed at the disposal of the Queen during her stay, also the famous Valrose Estate, which belongs to a Russian, Baron Paul Von Derwis. Roads will be made to connect these grounds with one another and with the hotel, so that the Queen will have miles of drives through the private grounds of the largest and finest villas in Nice and the vicinity.

Space would not permit of any mention being made last week of the gowns worn at the wedding of Lady Margaret Grosvenor. According to the accounts given in the different papers one of the prettiest gowns worn was that of the Marchioness of Ormonde; it was composed of royal blue Lyons velvet, trimmed with gold guipure lace and chinchilla, with a vest of blue cloth embroidered in gold. The cape was of the same velvet, lined and bordered with chinchilla, and trimmed with guipure. Her toque was of velvet, with cream cloth and petunia coloured dahlias, and her muff, of velvet also, had the same flowers and chinchilla.

The going away gown was of electric blue mirror velvet, trimmed with lovely sables. Hat, cloak, and muff to correspond.

It is rumoured that the exhibition of pictures at the Grafton Gallery next season will represent childhood in art. Whether the exhibition will be limited to the child as painted by English artists, or whether a wider scope will be allowed, is not yet known. Anyhow, the exhibition will bid fair to rival that of last season.

The East Anglian, in a leading article upon women Guardians, in Tuesday's issue, was not complimentary as regards the tender-heartedness of the fair sex, and bases its hope of their non-interference in matters touching the administration of the Poor Law upon the "notorious tendency of women to err upon the side of hardness," which tendency, says the East Anglian, "is soon assert itself, and put an end to heresies about out-relief and similar subjects." We do not hesitate to say that the above statement is a libel. Who erred on the side of hardness, Godiva or her lord? Queen Phillipa or King Edward? Who was it who first attempted to alleviate the sufferings of criminal prisoners? Mrs. Fry. Numbers of other philanthropic women might be mentioned. Only the other day a cheque girl was taken ill at one of the London theatres, the Prima Donna sent her home in her own comfortable carriage, whilst she walked hatless in the drizzling rain to her destination. There are, of course, Messalinas among women as there are Bloody Jefferys among men, but they are the exception, not the rule.

There is no doubt women are making the men "sit up" just now, and so perhaps an uneasy feeling that the feminine Guardians may take the shine out of the masculine Guardians prompted the sarcastic remarks of the East Anglian writer. Perhaps women are not so easily gulled as men.

But, as the same contemporary pointed out, the administration of the Poor-law is not the end and aim of a Guardian's existence. Another most important subject for their consideration is that of sanitation. This is a subject, as even the East Anglian admits, well within the scope of womenkind. Many women in the last few years made hygiene their study. Miss Hilda Morgan-Browne (who is a lecturer on hygiene) has written a series of simple and instructive pamphlets, entitled "Health in our Villages." A 6d. publication by the S.P.C.K., called "By Hook or by Crook," consists of several brightly-written stories by Miss Agnes Giberne, which show forth vividly the evils resulting from want of cleanliness and luck of air.

The Editor of the Hearth and Home has recently offered a prize to amateurs for the best design for a safety-pocket. The result of the competition was announced in last week's issue. The prize was divided between two competitors. "Kay's" idea was to have a side pocket in the inner one open at the end and drawn up with elastic. Articles put in the pocket could be dropped, the elastic being tight enough to prevent the purse being taken out by a pickpocket without a severe tug. Mrs. Fitzherbert's suggestion was for a pocket made in the ordinary way, but with the side nearest the person made double for an inside pocket, the opening to this inside pocket being concealed by a three-inch-deep flap.

The inhabitants of Kensington have been much disturbed lately by the rumoured existence in their midst of the "stabbing woman." This mysterious person, who dresses in black, asks her way of solitary pedestrians, and whilst they politely answer her enquiries she stabs them in the face with a knife, making the use of the special mark for her attack. The police so far have been unable to trace her. After the many horrors enacted in the streets of late the question has arisen, Is London growing fatally, for the first city in the world its fashionable, and also some of its most frequented parts, are extremely badly lighted. In South Kensington, near Cromwell Road, in the streets, near Praed Street Station, and in the Marylebone Road, lamps are few and far between, and there is many a dark space and corner where murder might be committed with impunity.

Santa Claus, Santa Claus, is the refrain of the children just now. This is the familiar name for St. Nicholas of Myra, who is the patron saint of children. S. Nicholas is said to have supplied three destitute maidens with marriage portions by throwing a bag of gold through the window into the house where they lived, upon three successive nights, for this reason, and because his day comes in December, he has been chosen for the gift-giver on Christmas Eve.

Children throughout Catholic Europe are still taught to reverence S. Nicholas. On Christmas Eve if they have been good and docile, they expect him to fill their stockings with gifts, but he is supposed to hold a rod in pickle for the idle and unruly. No saint in the Calendar has given rise to more legends and stories than him. There is hardly a town in England without one church at least bearing his name.

The latest novelties in jewellery this winter are the enamel or gold ornaments, and very pretty they are, lace brooches composed of bows of blue, red and green enamel. Safety-pin brooches with little hearts and red and white enamel. Gold chain bangles, with a row of cabochons of enamel set round with diamonds. Pin presents given by the bridegroom to the bridesmaids at Lady Margaret Grosvenor's wedding were heart-shaped brooches of blue and white enamel.

The medley of colours and trimmings used in millinery this year in town cause the hats and toques to present a rather bizarre effect. A hat in a shop in Bond Street was of black felt, and had the crown covered with a wide band of velvet, a large twist of bright electric blue in front. Toques are to be seen trimmed with fur, flowers, wings, velvet, and paste ornaments all at the same time. However, some of the toques and tams are very pretty; bonnets are conspicuous by their absence.

A large black velvet hat had a gathered brim of velvet and a small plain velvet crown. A large tuft of ostrich tips, shading from black to white, and then to black was a clump of black satin loops—not a rosette or a large bow. A very striking granny muff was made of dark green velvet, lined with pale yellow flowered silk, and trimmed with a large bow of yellow satin ribbon, a little fur animal, and a huge bunch of Marie Louise violets. There was a velvet toque to match of the Tam-o'-Shanter shape, trimmed with a sable tail, large tuft of violets and upstanding loop of yellow.

The prettiest underskirts shown in the London shops were those of black satin, brocaded with sprays of coloured flowers; they look very smart. A skirt for an evening gown was of white satin, bordered with three rows of narrow dark brown fur. Certainly light colours are nice for winter, and a rose-coloured velvet capetrimmed with dark brown fur looks deliciously warm for evening wear. Green is very much worn, and all shades of purple.

Wishing all the readers of the Journal "A Happy Christmas."

RAILWAY ACCIDENT AT LEEDS.

Thirty runaway waggons crashed into three carriages at the Great Northern station, Leeds, on Tuesday. One carriage was forced on the platform. Fortunately, no one was injured.

CAVE DWELLINGS AT STOCKPORT.

The Stockport magistrates have, after a prolonged hearing, decided to close about 50 of the slums in the town. This action arises from the prosecution by the Town Council through their medical officers, who declared that the tenements were uninhabitable, and had issued 1,000 notices requiring repairs. The medical officers described some of the houses as being caves cut out of the rock. Several property owners were fined.

LORD TWEEDMOUTH'S £2,000.

Lord Tweedmouth's offer to give £2,000 to the Anti-Parnellites is to be brought under the notice of the House of Commons. It is regarded as a serious breach of the privilege of Parliament, if it can be proved, in that it constitutes an attempt by a member of Government, who is also a Peer, to bribe members of the House of Commons by a promise of money.—Irish Daily Independent (Parnellite).

WHERE THE LABOURERS' MONEY GOES.

ANOTHER LABOUR FEDERATION EXPOSURE.

We have received the following letter for publication respecting the finances of the Norfolk and Norwich Amalgamated Labour Union, of which Mr. George Edwards, of Ingham, is Secretary. The facts are obtained from the Registrar-General a copy of the balance-sheet for the above Union for the year ending December 31st, 1893. The following extracts will have some interest for the working man, who, out of their hard-earned pence, have had to find the cash to pay the piper:—1st. The income is returned at £211 0s. 11½d. 2nd. The grants to members, salaries, officials, &c., £312 11s. 3d. 3rd. The officials' salaries, &c., being put down at £2364 s. 9d. From which it appears that the officials' salaries and other expenses came to £74 10s. 9½d. more than was received for that year. 4th. The grants to members, &c., is returned at £69 19s., shewing that for every pound distributed to members, 4s. 6d. went to pay for salaries and other charges. The funds in hand are set down at £71 3s., or only about 2s. per member. Had the labourers put their pence into the Post Office Saving Bank, they would have been far wiser than having put it into the sinking fund of a Union like this, to be devoured and swallowed up by official and other expenses.—Yours, &c.,

Ipswich.

THE IPSWICH FLOWER SHOWS.

SHALL THEY COLLAPSE.

A VIGOROUS APPEAL.

Mr. R. M. Miller presided over the annual meeting of the Ipswich Horticultural Society on Thursday afternoon. Mr. H. E. Archer (secretary) presented the financial statement. The payments for the year amounted to £347 16s. 3d., including the late July show, £91 6s.; ditto, November show, £69 10s.; bands, £82 18s.; hire of Public Hall and Drill Hall, £24 17s. 6d.; table decorations and illuminations, £14 12s. 5d.; judges, £12 14s. 6d.; printing and stationery, £6 16s.; donation to Nursing Society, £10. The receipts included a balance of £1 10s. 11d. brought forward; subscriptions, £113 9s.; arrears of ditto, £6 16s.; donations to prize fund, £10 7s. 6d.; gate money, July show, £19 4s. 6d.; ditto, November show, £143 11s.; and advertisements in schedule, £6 11s. with various small items, amounting to £4 5s. 5d. The year's payments thus showed an adverse balance of £33 12s. 10d. Bills to the amount of £14 17s. 10d. are unpaid, leaving a deficit of £48 10s. 8d. The total adverse balance was £48 10s. 8d.—Mr. Edgar Mayhew remarked that this year there was a loss of £60 gate-money as compared with the previous year. Mr. Mayhew proposed several alterations in the rules, of which one was carried, viz., that seven days' notice shall be given before the annual general meeting of any proposed alteration.—The Duke of Hamilton was re-elected president, Mr. G. S. Mobbs was added to the list of vice-presidents, the Rev. H. A. Barnes was re-appointed hon. secretary, and Mr. H. E. Archer re-appointed hon. treasurer. The motion of the Chairman, a vote of thanks was passed to Capt. Pretyman for his gift of trees for the November show.—The Rev. H. A. Barnes, returning thanks to the meeting for having elected him hon. secretary for the fifteenth year, recalled the time of his first election when he and others managed to get ninety-two vice-presidents each subscribing one guinea. Now there were only about 50. There was no doubt that the Society now was VERY MUCH LOW EBB.

They had not to go far to find reasons for this state of things. For years they had had the most wretched weather it was possible to have, and even when as an exception to the rule they had been favoured with brilliant weather as they were in the Jubilee year, the gate money at the summer shows was only about £250. If the Society was to go on, the leading people of the town and district must come forward and help them out of their difficulties. The subscriptions from the town and neighbourhood during the past year reached only the miserable total of £113. He thought it was disgraceful that the people of a town of the size of Ipswich, and with such excellent surroundings, should give no more. The Society had been founded by Sir Edmund's bad a launch under the auspices of Sir Edmund's bad a launch under sum in hand. If the leading people of the town and district did not support the Society, he thought the best thing that could be done would be to call a special meeting to wind it up. He put the question to the meeting whether it was not time that such a step should be taken or not. He deplored that not only the subscriptions, but the attendances had been falling off considerably of late. What it used to be, and that the Society had to rely for its gate money on the populace who came in the evening to hear the band, and see the fireworks.—Mr. Alfred H. Steward, in the form of a question, asked Mr. Berners in his zeal for the Society had put the dark side of the case rather too strongly. There was a great deal of truth in what had been said, but he did not undoubtedly was in a low state, but it was not necessarily being wound up on that account to wind it up. One good day, with the help of the Ipswich people, would put them in a solvent position again. He believed that the Ipswich people had not been treated properly, were a generous people, and he appealed to them to help the Society, improve the growth of flowers, &c., by their support, and by their mite. In conclusion, Mr. Fosdick proposed a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Berners for the valuable services he had rendered as hon. secretary for the last fifteen years, and a suggestion by Mr. Notcutt, that it might be possible to hold a show on the occasion of the meeting of the British Association at Ipswich in September, was referred to the Committee.

MARKETS.

IPSWICH CATTLE, Tuesday.—On the general market there was a short supply all round, and the trade was slow. Animals penned, exclusive of sale yards —27 scores, 261 fat and 16 lean beasts, 239 sheep, and 206 pigs. —Messrs. Robert Bond and Sons report the supply of cattle at their sale was about the average for a market following the Christmas Show. The quality of fat cattle of good quality were well maintained, but rough animals commanded very little attention. Fat sheep again met a brisk demand. Messrs. Wilson's Suffolk Horn sheep drew up to 61s. 6d. Southdown hoggets for grazing purposes made 31s. Several pens of barren cows were penned, and made satisfactory prices. A large supply of fat and store sows, trade ruled dull and in favour of buyers. Several cows were forwarded, but the demand was not good as it has hitherto been, and prices were lower. Numbers at sale:—Beasts 61, sheep 129, calves 28, swine 260.—At the Messrs. Sparling and Sons' Sale Yard, being the week following their annual Christmas show, there was only a nominal sale; the few animals offered being in half scores. Numbers penned:—12 beasts, 2 calves, 52 sheep, 174 swine.

IPSWICH CORN, Tuesday.—Wheat not much offering, demand only moderate, and prices ruled 1s. per qr. lower than last week. Barley and oats in steady request, and quite equal to previous week's quotations. Beans and peas dull and inactive. Oats, maize, and grinding barleys in fair demand. Other feeding corns and cakes unaltered.

SAXMUNDHAM CORN, Wednesday.—No change to report, and but few samples on offer. Trade was very dull, and the attendance was very small.

HARLESTON CORN, Wednesday.—Wheat about the same as last week. Last week's quotations made in what little business passed in barley, maize, beans, peas, and oats.

BURY CATTLE, Wednesday.—Very short supply of fat beasts, for which there was not much change in value as to last week, but quality was fairly good. Comparatively few fat sheep, and no perceptible variation in quotations. Moderate supply of fat pigs, stores and bacon jointers, which failed to maintain former rates. In some instances fat hogs fetched from 4s. 9d. to 5s., 6d. per stone of 14lb. on an average. Store beasts included some Irish cattle, which were not in particular request, and the attendance was by no means effected. In all the departments of the market there was only a moderate business transacted, as is usually the case on the Wednesday following the Christmas Day.

BURY CORN, Wednesday.—Market quiet all round, with very little doing. Wheat supply short, and demand slack; prices practically unaltered. Red 31s. to 32s., white 31s. to 34s., rerets 19s. to 20s. per qr. Barley in fair demand, especially for low qualities; good parcels nominally firm. Feeding corn dull, and the turn lower.

NORWICH CORN, Thursday.—The market to-day was almost deserted, there being simply no business doing.

BURY CORN, Thursday.—Very slim attendance of farmers, and but little business transacted. Prices for reds, whilst 21s. to 22s. would cause whites to change hands. Waiting barley, fair supply, ruled 18s. to 20s. per qr. Feeding sorts quite nominal at 16s. to 18s.

STOWMARKET CORN, Thursday.—A very dull market, with only a limited supply of wheat, which sold slowly at about last week's rates; fine parcels a shade less; reds 29s. to 32s., whites (hardly any offering) nominally 31s. to 34s. Barley in good supply, with dull demand at late rates. Feeding corn unaltered. Instances cheaper on the week.

WOODBRIDGE CORN, Thursday.—Quite a holiday market here to-day, and little business done in wheat or barley, both being in short supply, prices nominally unaltered. Oats and feeding corn dull. Comments on the coming season. Wheat, white, 32s. to 34s.; ditto, red, 21s. to 23s.; barley, superior, 33s. to 37s., ditto, inferior, 28s. to 30s.

LONDON AGRICULTURAL SEED TRADE, Wednesday.—Messrs. John Shaw and Sons, seed merchants, of Great Marlborough Street, London, E.C., write that to-day's market exhibited an idle holiday character. Trefoil, Alsyke, and red keep steady. White clover seed, on the other hand, is somewhat easier, supposed. There is nothing doing in ryegrasses. The new Kunigunda has not arrived prove acceptable, both in quality and price. For white and Dutch clovers full prices are asked. The canaryseed market shows great strength, Russian being unprocurable here. In other mustard nor rapeseed is there any change. Linseed is slightly easier.

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.—Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in packets, by Grocers, labelled—"James Epps & Co., Ltd., Homœopathic Chemists, London."—Also makers of Epps's Cocoaine or Cocoa Nib Extract; A thin brown wafer. For over 100 years it has been beneficially taking the place of tea. Its active principle being a pure concentrated stimulant, supplies the needed energy without unduly exciting the system.

FIFTEEN REASONS
WHY YOU SHOULD TAKE OUT
A SICKNESS POLICY
WITH ALBERT RANSON.

1. BECAUSE to provide against sickness is to prove yourself thrifty.
2. BECAUSE thrift is essential to a true morality.
3. BECAUSE by staking your good health against the chances of illness you are speculating
4. BECAUSE speculation is opposed to both thrift and morality.
5. BECAUSE although you may have been healthy in the past it is the future that you have to provide for.
6. BECAUSE sickness will come, and will bring with it greatly increased expenditure, and probably loss or depreciation of income.
7. BECAUSE Sickness Insurance is the only means of providing a certain and adequate income during sickness.
8. BECAUSE your savings for times of sickness may thus be regular and adequate, and the provision ample.
9. BECAUSE if you have a family they will share its advantages with you.
10. BECAUSE if you have no family it is still a good provision for yourself.
11. BECAUSE you cannot do for yourself what can be done by combination with others.
12. BECAUSE you cannot afford to be ill, and therefore you cannot afford to be uninsured against sickness.
13. BECAUSE the premiums charged are as low as is compatible with safety.
14. BECAUSE all claims are promptly and liberally met.
15. BECAUSE the security is undoubted and indisputable.
